Set Up: Each envelope contains 16 slips of paper. Deal them ALL out at your table, even if that means some people must have more than others. Choose a person to go first. That person randomly selects ONE of his/her slips to start the game.

How to Play:

1. When it is your turn, read the two statements on your slip of paper.
2. All players calculate the answer to the question, preferably by hand or in your heads.
3. Whoever has the answer says so, and it’s then his/her turn to read from THAT slip.
4. Slips that have been used are discarded face up into the middle of the table.
5. It’s okay if the person asking the question ALSO has the answer on another slip.

How to Win: You win if you are the first person to read all of your slips of paper.
